In 2018, Colin O'Brady became the first person to cross Antarctica alone and unsupported. His journey took him 54 days and covered 932 miles. O'Brady's journey was a story of perseverance, resilience, and self-discovery.

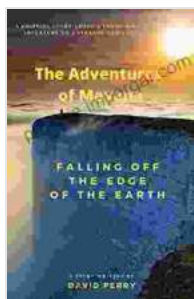

O'Brady's journey began in Hercules Inlet, Antarctica. From there, he skied and dragged a sled weighing over 300 pounds across the vast, frozen continent. He faced treacherous ice conditions, extreme cold, and high winds. There were times when he thought he would not make it. But he persevered, and on December 12, 2018, he reached the South Pole.

O'Brady's journey was not just a physical challenge. It was also a mental and emotional challenge. He had to overcome self-doubt, fear, and loneliness. He had to learn to trust himself and his instincts. And he had to find the strength to keep going, even when things were tough.

O'Brady's journey is a story of hope and inspiration. It is a story about what is possible when we set our minds to something and never give up. Falling Off The Edge Of The Earth is a must-read for anyone who is interested in adventure, travel, or personal growth.
