

Tidal Wave: From Leyte Gulf to Tokyo Bay – An Epic Naval History

By Ian W. Toll

In the annals of naval history, no battle looms larger than the Battle of Leyte Gulf. Fought in the waters off the Philippines in October 1944, it was the largest naval battle in history, involving over 200 ships and 1,000 aircraft. The outcome of the battle was a decisive victory for the United States, and it marked the beginning of the end of the Japanese Empire.
